When Queen Elizabeth II turned 90, she became Britain's oldest and longest reigning monarch. While most of us hope to be healthy well into our 90s, none of us know how much time we have. However, we can plan for the unexpected so we can be taken care of along the way.

Creating a plan is crucial to ensure you won't outlive your income. While projected costs sound like a king's ransom to most of us, the earlier you plan, the longer your assets have for potential growth to help outpace inflation. And, if you're considering long-term care insurance, the younger you are when you purchase a plan, the less costly the premiums.
